THE EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL.

Valuable Land Secured for the Much-Needed Institution. The Site for the Buildings - Work

Must Be Commenced Within Ten Years - Chevy Chase Deed.

From an interview with Miss M. E. Mann, who has given herself without reand with untiring energy to the work of getting from Congress a charter for the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation, and of procuring the deeds of the lands donated and purchased for the site of the cathedral, and the educational institutions to be connected with it, a Star reporter learned the following interesting facts relating to the cathedral project and its present status, which she regards as minently satisfactory in every way. Miss Mann expresses herself as greatly indebted to the late Engineer Commissioner, Capt. W. T. Rossell, for his kin'lly interest and valuable assistance in both of these undertakings. It was at his suggestion that it would strengthen the title to have a new survey made of the entire property, and the plat recorded, that she sought out Mr. H. B. Looker and induced him to make the surveys, which he generously did without cost to the corporation. The areas here given as determined by this survey have been accepted as correct by all the parties

SINGULAR BATHING ACCIDENT. Sucked Into the Outlet Pipe of

Emil August Goth, aged eleven, the third son of Mr. Goth, a traveler, residing at 13 Cannon Street road, St. George's-in-the-East, came to a terrible end on Monday evening. Owing to the hot weather the people in the neighborhood flocked in great numbers to the Jubilee public baths in Betts street, and the officials were taxed to their utmost to meet the demands. Little Goth, who was an expert swimmer, able to ac-complish twelve lengths of the bath with ease, was engaged to take tickets at the

Y. He first occupied a position in public life by his appointment as clerk of the general assembly of New York, which office he held for one term. He became the close friend of Gov. Wm. H. Seward, the intimacy continuing without a break until the death of the governor many years thereafter. Mr. Risley's life at this time was especially eventful and many years thereafter. Mr. Risley's life at this time was especially eventful and interesting, enjoying as he did the friendship of many of the leading public men of the day, including Daniel Webster, Gen. On the occasion of the completion of the Lake Erie and Western railroad to Dunkirk, of which he was counsel at that time, Mr. Risley entertained Daniel Webster and other distinguished men at his home in that other distinguished men at his home in that place.

Mr. Risley continued in the practice of his profession at Dunkirk until June, 1863, when he was called to this city by being appointed by Secretary Chase one of the supervising special agents of the Treasury Department, in connection with the cotton purchases. He afterward became assistant solicitor of the treasury under President Johnson. His public life in Washington ended in 1875, when he went to Colorado in the interest of Gen. Wm. J. Palmer, and engaged in various enterprises there. In 1876 he was for a year the editor of the Gazette, published at Colorado Springs.

In 1878 he was appointed solicitor of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, and in June, 1879, when that road was in difficulty with the Santa Fe, he was made receiver of the company. He continued his connection with that corporation as general solicitor of the land department after the railroad began to make numerous extensions. He resigned this position in 1831 and afterward lived quietly at Colorado Springs, retaining his connection with various corporations having offices there. He was twice married in early life in New York and in his later years in Colorado. He leaves a widow, and two daughters by his first wife, Miss Olive Risley Seward, who is so well known in this city, and Mrs. Alfred Rodman of Dedham, Mass., a frequent visitor in Washington during the winter season. Mr. Risley was always a frequent visitor in Washington during the winter season. Mr. Risley was always a central figure of interest at his daughter's house; a man of affairs, sound judg-ment, brilliant in conversation, and a per-fect type of the old school gentleman in manners, which can come only from a disposition that thinks no ill of others. His loss will be sincerely and keenly felt by the many friends who will mourn his death.

that will come before the convention on Monday.

It is learned that the report of the committee on pensions, which is to be sub-mitted to the national encampment, takes mitted to the national encampment, takes the ground that a pension once granted has the force and nature of a judgment against the government, and cannot be suspended without due notice and prima facie evidence of fraud. The report will also demand that veterans who are suspended shall have an opportunity to know their accusers, and to be heard in their own defense. The report has been carefully considered by the committee, and contains the position of the Grand Army on the subject of pension suspensions.

Launching the Kearsarge.

Thousands of citizens witnessed Thursday night the ceremony of launching a ship. It is the mimic ship Kearsarge, built in the State House yard in imitation of the famous victor in the naval battle with the Alabama in the waters of Cherbourg. A young woman, after the imaginary plunge into the bosom of the watern, broke a bottle of wine athwart the vessel's bow, and said:

tended any home rule measure must have, it contained finality in principle. When Ireland should get her national parliament it would include finality in the true sense of the term. Irishmen so accepted the measure as a final adjustment of their leading grievance against Great Britain.

Joseph Chamberlain, leader of the liberal unionists, while disclaiming all intention of questioning Mr. McCarthy's sincerity, said that he could not forget how another leader of the Irish, after accepting a bill as a complete settlement of the demands of Ireland, recanted and declared it was accepted only as a temporary intended any home rule measure must have, it was accepted only as a temporary in-

The ship was then thrown open to the public, who paid for admission. It was put in commission yesterday morning, and at 10 o'clock the naval veterans had their annual parade and review by National Commander Osborn of Boston. The commander of the ship is Capt. John B. Wirt of Indianapolis.

Rear Admiral Osborn and staff, consisting of Commodore F. B. Allen, Hartford, Conn.; Capt. Cyrus Gears, Baltimore; Commodore C. H. Leaman, Dayton; Lieut. Commander L. D. Woodruff, Rockford, Ill.; Senior Lieut. Z. P. Bragg, Duluth, Mich.; Lleut. Joseph H. Cluse, Philadelphia; Fleet Surgeon T. Trezo Sheetzer, Baltimore; Fleet Master E. F. Dustin, Baltimore; Fleet Engineer Samuel Byckerstaff, Cincinnati, were met at the station with all the ceremony required by the United States regulations, and were driven to the ship, where a salute of thirteen guns signalized their presence.

After mounting the ship and receiving a additional states and their states and their annual parade and review by National Mr. Chamberiain, "you will have the Irish ocoming to parliament.

"If this bill ever be passed," continued Mr. Chamberiain, "you will have the Irish coming to parliament demanding more and putting pressure on minister will be found weak enough or base enough to buy the Irish vote by granting final separation. (Hear, hear!) The mischer that the government has done by introducing this policy is irreparable. It has made enormously more difficult the government of Ireland; it has postponed indefinitely the hope of the completion of a better settlement.

"The bill is now about to go to another place. We probably shall never see it again. (Cheers.) But whether we see it or not, I am convinced that the British people will give the policy embodied in it adeathblow at the first opportunity offered them. This bill will vanish, but the weakness of the liberal party, its lack of interests of the country, as mere incidents

George Gould contested the assessment of $10,000,000 on the estate, and the matter is now before the courts.

If he claims Ulster county as a permant residence while occupying his 5th avenue palace he must either take with him to Ulster county all of the stocks, bonds, mortages and other securities now assessed in New York, or he must show that they are all assessment law the location of taxable property is the main point to be considered. So it was said at the tax department.

By claiming a residence in Ulster county, Mr. Gould's taxes will be greatly reduced, as the assessments in the rural districts are lower than in the city.

The case in part is similar to that of the David Dows estate. The heirs of Dows claimed residence in Westchester county, and the courts sustained them.
